Forms Processing

Forms have become an every day part of our lives. Whether it's a survey form, application form, renewal form or test form they all need to be completed and the data later extracted. Traditionally data from forms such as these was manually keyed into database application software.

This practice has proven expensive and prone to error.

Using software from the industry leader in forms recognition technology Digital Documents provide the cost effective and accurate alternative to traditional processing methods.

Digital Documents can scan your form, extract the necessary data, validate it using sophisticated validation techniques, and format it in the required format for easy upload to your existing software application.

The bottom line is faster, lower cost and more accurate data processing.
